Lund Lawyers’ Day 2013

On Saturday 20 April, the Lund Lawyers’ Day was held, with a brunch followed by a panel discussion. During the meal, participants were entertained by Culpakören and alumna Anna Dyhre, author and lecturer, who gave a talk on the subject of “The lawyers of tomorrow – a reflection on their dreams and ambitions”. Diplomas were presented to alumni who were celebrating a decade, or multiple decades, since they graduated from the faculty. The panel discussion, which was led by lawyer Karin Ebbinghaus, dealt with the issue of “Listed companies – brilliant or just a bother?”. The panel included head of the Stockholm Stock Exchange Jens Henriksson, lawyer Erik Sjöman, board professional Pernilla Ström and Professor Per Samuelsson.

Dear colleagues,

Spring has come to Lund! One sure sign of spring is Culpakören’s traditional spring concert on the steps of the faculty building. We got to enjoy that once again this year – thank you!

The academic year is nearing its end. New this year is the jurisprudence essay in semester 6, which a cohort of students have been working on this semester, with a number of staff involved. A lot of work has gone into the preparations over a long time and it is great to see the results of the reform.

In this newsletter you can read about the preparations for the forthcoming research evaluation, RQ14, about the opportunity to teach at the Faculty of Law at the University of Nagoya and about applications for Law at Lund University for autumn 2013 entry.

Two alumnae in the same family. Monica Dyhre celebrated 50 years since graduation with daughter Anna, lecturer and author.

RQ14: Time to register your publications in LUP

The research evaluation RQ14 is now starting. The first step concerns registration of research publications in LUP, and all researchers must ensure that their publications are registered. This applies to all categories of researcher – including doctoral students, visiting researchers and senior professors.

It is important that all publications are registered, because RQ14 includes a quantitative comparison of the faculties of law in Lund and Uppsala. All publications need to be registered if the Faculty of Law in Lund is to perform as well as possible in this comparison.

Researchers are responsible for ensuring their own publications are registered. Remember that it is not just a case of entering recent publications; you should also check that older publications have been entered. RQ14 is evaluating the period 1 January 2008–30 June 2013. All publications with a publication date within this period must be registered.

For those who cannot remember how to register publications in LUP, Gunilla Wiklund will send out information by email.

All publications must be registered in LUP by 1 September 2013.

Internationalisation news

In April, the faculty received a visit from representatives of the National University “Odessa Law Academy” in Odessa, Ukraine. The delegation presented us with a book, Fundamentals of Ukrainian Law, which is now in the library. For more information about the university, see http://www.onua.edu.ua/.

A few weeks ago the faculty received a visit from Professor Koji Ono from Nagoya University Law School in Japan. We have had a bilateral agreement with Nagoya University for several years and a number of the faculty’s lecturers and researchers have been to Nagoya and have collaborations with counterparts there. Nagoya University Graduate School of Law has just started a Master’s programme in Cross-Border Legal Institution Design, which focuses on work in international environments. If you know of any students who you think would be interested in applying to the programme in Nagoya, you are welcome to contact Bengt Lundell for more information.

Nagoya Law School runs several English-language Master’s programmes and wants to offer lecturers at our faculty the opportunity to spend 1–2 weeks teaching on one of these programmes. Contact Bengt Lundell for more information about this.
